I am not a PI and bought the book principally because then 1st Lt Ron Hankin USMC was my weapons platoon Commander on Okinawa in 1958. We were both then with India 3/3. He told me of his book a few years ago when we were playing golf in FL. I just had to have a copy!

A Career-Saving Guide for Private Investigators, Detectives Security Police Understanding the laws of private investigations can keep you out of court, the unemployment line...or even jail! Written by a highly experienced private investigator. Topics include surveillance vs. stalking, trespassing, laws surrounding ruses impersonations, wiretapping eavesdropping, arrests and interrogations, GPS tracking devices, camera/video issues, search seizure, polygraph testing. Also includes time-tested tips for being a more effective investigator.

Finally an experienced lawyer who has also worked the streets as a private detective gives us a book combining street smarts with legal authority. Ron Hankin's Navigating the Legal Minefield is a must read guide with quick answers for anyone in the profession, whether private detective, security officer, or police officer. I highly recommend it and plan on using it for my college level students in police science and members of my police department. --Larry W. Mason, Command Officer, Ill. State Police (ret.)Ron Hankin's book provides a brilliant account of the law that touches on investigative work...a must read for private detectives, private police or anyone interested in private investigations. Hankin simplifies complex legal topics in a clear and accessible fashion without sacrificing authority or expertise. I absolutely love this book and give it the highest recommendation! --Matthew J. Medina, Assistant States Attorney, Cook County, Il. Author of Real World Search SeizureThis book is a teacher s dream! As a long-time criminal law and security instructor, I highly recommend this book for the private detective or security professional, whether new or seasoned...a must-have book in the classroom or on the streets. --Dan Devine, CPP CFE CHS-III
