H. Richard Beresford : Neurology and the Law: Private Litigation and Public Policy (Contemporary Neurology Series) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Neurology and the Law: Private Litigation and Public Policy (Contemporary Neurology Series):

This text is designed to help neurologists and neurosurgeons to gain a better understanding of the legal process. It aims to help them to avoid some of the pitfalls that physicians often encounter during court appearances. The text is based on US law and litigation.

"... scholarly, thoroughly researched ... the author's expertise as a neurologist as well as a lawyer has led to an extensive and authoritative review ... a learned treatise on the practice of neurology and its professional, legal, institutional, ethical and public policy considerations ...with much information and useful advice for the Canadian neurologist ... " Canadian Journal of Neurological Sciences (Nov 1999)"The writing is scholarly, thoroughly researched and it contains frequent references to and analyses of U.S. Court decisions, of federal rules which govern evidence and of relevant statutes. The author's expertise as a neurologist as well as a lawyer has led to an extensive and authoritative review of the inter-relationship of neurology and law as it exists in the United States." --Canadian Journal of Neurological Sciences
