Gary B. Melton, Phillip Mitchell Lyons Jr., Willis J. Spaulding : No Place to Go: The Civil Commitment of Minors (Children and the Law) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised No Place to Go: The Civil Commitment of Minors (Children and the Law):

A generation ago, the Joint Commission on the Mental Health of Children concluded that there is not a single community in this country which provides an acceptable standard of services for its mentally ill children. Since then, many states have acknowledged the need to develop a system of care for such children, yet few adequate solutions have been implemented. Parents and other decision makers often face two unsatisfactory choices: coping as well as they can by themselves or turning the child over to someone else. This book surveys issues related to the care and civil commitment of children with emotional disturbance. The authors examine research on the residential treatment system for children and youths, then analyze the prevailing legal framework for the commitment of minors to such treatment. They systematically address the question of what child mental health policy should be and conclude by proposing a policy that emphasizes privacy, autonomy, and family integrity. No Place to Go is both a major scholarly statement on the treatment of children with emotional disturbance and a rallying cry for principled change.
